Bridging the Gap

Abstract:

The topic is finding solutions in the community, looking at how we can improve working with charities and the VCSE sector when planning care and helping people to remain independent at home.

It is widely accepted that engaging with the community can improve a person's health, whilst some healthcare professionals are on board with working with community partners some areas and health care professionals are not yet engaged.

This session aims to start the conversation about how this can be improved and what outcomes could be improved by this engagement.
